

Choosing a school

Choosing a school

This factsheet is intended to provide guidance to parents living in Islington who are applying for a school place for their child with Special Educational Needs and/or Disabilities (SEND).

Parents know their children better than anyone and therefore usually have an idea of what environment will suit their child. When considering schools you will find it helpful to find out as much as you can about each school. You need to know that your preferences are based on a sound understanding of what each school can offer your child or children. We hope the suggestions outlined in this leaflet will help you through this important process in your children's education.

Making a school choice

No-one will tell you explicitly which school you should express a preference for, a good starting point is to talk to staff at your child's pre-school or Nursery about the 'type' of provision they think they need. If other professionals are involved, speak with them too they will have a good idea of your child's needs; be mindful that no-one can or will tell you which school you should express a preference for.

If your child has an EHC Plan, it will usually indicate the type of provision required to meet your child's needs. Have this in mind when you're looking at schools and preparing your questions.

If your child has and EHC plan:

You will receive a letter from the LA which will tell you the date they need your decision by. You ask for any of the following:

- maintained school and any form of academy or free school (mainstream or special)
- non-maintained special school
- independent school approved for this purpose by the Secretary of State and published in a list available at www.gov.uk/government/publications/independent-special-schools-and-colleges

The Local Authority (LA) have to agree your choice of school, unless the school is unsuitable for your child:

- it would prevent the efficient education of other children in the school (for example the school is oversubscribed) or
- it would not be good use of LA resources.

If you express a preference for a suitable school that is not your nearest school then Islington may expect you to ensure your child can get there.

If your child does not have an EHC plan:

Even if they have SEND, then the LA's standard school admissions criteria will apply. Please click here for further information.

Helping you decide

Before you visit:

- Think about what's important to your child & what type of school they need.
- Read through any recent reports, IEP's and your child's EHCP.
- Consider taking spare copies of your child's EHCP and other useful information/reports to discuss and pass onto the school SENCO.
- Look at Islington Local Offer for information on local schools and information about the way individual schools support their pupils' additional needs.
- Look at the schools website/read their prospectus and their SEN Policy.
- Get a copy of the school's latest Ofsted summary report available from <http://www.ofsted.gov.uk> or the local Library.
- Prepare any notes and particular questions you have, you may find it helpful to write any questions down and take them with you.

When you visit:

Use your eyes and ears as you walk round. Does the school feel welcoming? Do the children seem cheerful, busy and interested? And do the staff? Think about how noisy, crowded, orderly or lively it seems and what this would mean for your child. Are you encouraged to see the whole school? Check the classrooms and think about how they are organised. Is the school well supplied with resources and equipment? Look at the notice boards. Is work by children of all abilities on display? Make sure you get a look at the playground during a break time. Try to observe how staff speak to the children. What is the Head teacher like? He or she is crucial to how the school runs and how happy and supported both pupils and staff feel. Look out for the things that matter to you and your child whether that's lots of computers, great football coaching or an emphasis on giving pupils real responsibility.

Ask questions

You want to find out practical details, like class sizes and arrangements for extra support. But even more important is the school's attitude to children with special needs. Do they look for problems or solutions? Do they see meeting special needs as a chore or as a benefit to the whole school?

Some things you might want to ask are:

- What is the staff's experience and understanding of my child's needs?
- Has the school had a child before with my child's needs?
- Do any of the staff have specialist training?
- What strategies and resources would be used to help my child?
- Where would the school turn to for specialist advice and support?
- How do they deal with difficult behaviour?
- How would they support my child outside lesson time?
- How do they help children mix and make friends?
- How do they deal with bullying?
- How would they meet my child's medical or personal care needs?
- How do they consult and communicate with parents?
- What out of school activities are there and can all children take part?

If it is a special school or unit you might also ask:

- What range of disability does the school cater for?
- What therapies are available?
- What subjects will my child be able to study?
- Would they get some qualifications?
- Will they get help with personal and life skills?
- What inclusion experiences does the school offer?
- Is there an appropriate group of children for my child to learn with and find friends?

How will your child travel to school?

Your child may be eligible for travel assistance on the grounds of their SEN. Families may also qualify on grounds such as low income, distance to school and safety of travel route. Please see Islington's ‘transport to school and college’ for more information.

Your rights:

- Your child has the right to a school place whilst they are between the 5 & 16.
- You have the right to express a preference of schools you would like your child to go to, whether the school is inside or outside the area you live in.
- If you are not offered a place for your child at the schools you have expressed a preference for, you have the right to appeal to an independent panel.

Take it one step at a time, the decision will be a process you'll work through, Islington SENDIASS can offer you impartial advice & guidance, to support you in expressing your preference and working through the admissions process.
